OCTOBER 2004

Beyond the Basics of Bluegrass Banjo

Sunday, October 24th, 6:00 – 8:30 P.M. Eddie Collins' book release party (Beyond the Basics of Bluegrass Banjo) will be at Artz Ribhouse (2330 S. Lamar). This 2nd Annual "All Banjo – All Night" celebration will include scores of banjo players dropping by to pick tunes – 37 performers participated last year. 4- and 5-string banjos will be represented in bluegrass, old-time, jazz and ragtime styles. There will be both solo and ensemble performances. Eddie will also give a rare performance of special solo banjo pieces. All banjo players and fans will be eligible for special prizes (Dinners, T-shirts, CDs, Books, Strings, etc.) from Artz Ribhouse, South Austin Music, Sugar Hill Records, and others. Contact Eddie for more info: 512-836-8255. tuneman@texas.net.

Bobby Thompson's new CD "Thompson Picks"

Bobby Thompson has a considerable musical legacy. He was in great demand as a studio musician in Nashville, recording with too many names to mention them all here, but we'll name a few:

Johnny Cash, Marty Robbins, Jim & Jesse, Hank Snow, Tammy Wynette, Elvis Presley, Carl Perkins, Jerry Lee Lewis, Loretta Lynn, Bill Monroe, Dolly Parton, Perry Como, Eddy Arnold, Les Paul, Connie Smith, Merle Haggard, Trini Lopez, the Monkees, Olivia Newton-John, Melanie, Jimmy Buffett, Dr Hook, Leon Russell, Neil Young and many others.

Bobby also played banjo on the Theme from "Hee Haw" and movie soundtracks "Coal Miners' Daughter", "Five Easy Pieces", "Smokey & the Bandit I&II", "Urban Cowboy" and others. In addition, he has played his banjo on those catchy little music "jingles" for practically every major company you can imagine.

Some of Bobby's best work was recorded with two of the best original bands to come out of Nashville. First he was a member of Area Code 615. This was the Dream Team of cutting edge musicians in Music City in the late sixties. His version of Mason William's Classical Gas is just amazing, he played banjo runs on these recordings that leave the best players in town shaking their heads still to this day. Later he became a member of the southern cult band Barefoot Jerry. With friends Wayne Moss, Charlie McCoy, Russ Hicks and others, they wrote and performed songs that were years ahead of their time.

The Tenbrooks Banjos

Deering's new Tenbrooks banjos elevate America's beloved instrument to a classical purity of tone that is historically unprecedented! Named after the famed Kentucky Derby winner, Tenbrooks who was immortalized by Bill Monroe, the father of bluegrass, in his traditional favorite, "Mollie and Tenbrooks," Deering's newest model has a depth and tonal dimension never before achieved.

This quantum leap in the evolution of the banjo is the culmination of a collaborative effort between Greg Deering, internationally renowned banjoist, Jens Krüger, and the oldest bell foundry in Europe.

Re-evaluating all the components of the banjo, these unique and talented individuals created the Tenbrooks banjo to attain the utmost in performance, comfort, speed, and tonal purity that has raised the bar for all professional bluegrass banjos to a higher level of sound quality and performance.

It's a fast paced world...but at Deering, we build your dreams one hand-crafted banjo at a time.

Personal service and world-class quality are ALWAYS worth the price.

When you own a Deering, you own the very finest!

Curly Seckler, Bill Vernon To Be Inducted into Bluegrass Hall of Honor

IBMA is proud to announce two inductees to the Bluegrass Music Hall of Honor for 2004: first generation bluegrass pioneer Curly Seckler and renowned bluegrass radio broadcaster and historian, the late Bill Vernon. The inductions will be one of the high-points of this year's International Bluegrass Music Awards Show slated for October 7, at the Kentucky Center in Louisville, Ky.

The mention of Curly Seckler's name brings with it an instant connection to Bluegrass Hall of Honor members Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs. Specifically, Seckler's peers in the industry and long-time fans will recall the pivotal role his tenor voice played in the Foggy Mountain Boys sound. Seckler was a member of Flatt & Scruggs' Foggy Mountain Boys during three separate stints totaling 11 years, from 1949-1962. His duets with Lester Flatt during this time rank high among bluegrass music's classic vocals, and he also greatly enhanced trio and quartet combinations.

Seckler was heard by millions every week on syndicated television, as well as daily radio shows on WSM and The Grand Ole Opry, a heavy personal appearance schedule and enviable exposure on a major record label.

After an 11 year hiatus from performing, Seckler returned to the music business as a member of Lester Flatt's Nashville Grass from 1973-79. After Flatt's death in 1979 until around 1995, true to his promise to Lester to continue the band, Curly continued performing and recording as "Curly Seckler & The Nashville Grass," hiring Willis Spears in 1981 as lead singer. In 1987 Seckler and Willis became partners, and they led the band together until Curly's retirement in 1994.

Seckler began his career in the late 1930s around his birthplace, China Grove, N.C., later performing with both Charlie Monroe and Mac Wiseman. By 1949 he had teamed up briefly with Danny Bailey, performed on The Grand Ole Opry with The Cope Brothers and briefly joined Jim & Jesse and The Virginia Boys—making a recording with the latter group for Capitol Records. During this period he also worked with The Stanley Brothers and The Sauceman Brothers.

Curly's songwriting credits include "A Purple Heart," "What's The Matter Now?" "That Old Book of Mine" and a collaboration with Flatt, "No Mother or Dad." He recorded for the CMH, Folkways, Rich-R-Tone, Revonah, County and Vine Street record labels.

Born July 4, 1937 in New York City, Bill Vernon was urged by his family to follow his father into the corporate tax attorney business and was sent to an exclusive Eastern prep school for his education. Bill was distracted at Brown University; part of the reason was at age 14 he heard Lester Flatt & Curly Seckler singing "We Can't Be Darlings Anymore" on his father's car radio. Vernon told friends years later that he knew then and there he wanted to be involved in the kind of music they were singing and he would never be happy doing anything else. At 21, Bill Vernon took a job as a clerk with a Wall Street firm and while there began a part-time job in 1964 as a country music disc jockey at radio station WBAI in New York City. After 12 years on Wall Street he quit his job in 1970 to work at a country station in Dover, Del. While there, he began to emcee area bluegrass festivals on weekends and started writing record reviews for Muleskinner News magazine.

Bill's reputation spread, and he continued to emcee at larger festivals, including those in Bean Blossom, Ind.; Berryville, Va.; Camp Springs, N.C.; Stuart, Va.; McClure, Va. and the Berkshire Mountain festival in New York. As a journalist, he freelanced for publications like Pickin', Muleskinner News and Bluegrass Unlimited, in addition to writing a number of album liner notes.

Following a desire to be closer to the region from which bluegrass spawned, he learned about a radio opening at WYTI in Rocky Mount, Va., from Jim Eanes. He started there in December of 1973, and except for two years at a rival station in town, remained at WYTI until his death of a heart attack on November 20, 1996, at age 59.

Vernon also hosted radio shows in Floyd and Roanoke, Va. and Charlottesville, N.C. during this time. He was content with his job at Rocky Mount because the station owner gave him free rein to play bluegrass and traditional country songs of his choosing. Bill encouraged talent on all levels and in various aspects of the industry. Vernon was known for his comprehensive knowledge and amazing retention of intricate details from the history of bluegrass music and its people—often inserting in conversation, stage introductions or print, topical spontaneous witticisms or good-natured barbs directed at whomever he felt deserved them.

a) The fiddlers (violinists?) were Richard Greene and Gene Lowinger. They probably had a boost with the band's repertoire since Monroe expected his bandsmen to play in just about any key. This could put some serious strain on those who'd learned from relatives, friends or by ear. As one old-timer said: "If you could play in G, C, and D that would just about get it."

b) Short answer: Nowadays, nobody knows for sure.

In 1935, Zeke Morris wrote and copyrighted "Let Me Be Your Salty Dog", later "Salty Dog Blues", and recorded it with his brother Wiley in 1938. It became the signature song for the Morris Brothers and over the years they made more money off residuals than they did performing or recording.

Zeke said the idea came after winning at a slot machine in a café called the "Salty Dog". Wiley said, no, when they were boys in Old Fort NC they'd see a pretty girl and say, "I'd like to be her salty dog!" Wade Mainer, who'd known them forever, said, no, the "... song was created way, way back by the Shelton Brothers ... I remember that song many, many years before [1935]."

Maybe back to 1924, to "Papa" Charlie Jackson, a Chicago jazz and blues man who played a 6-string banjo tuned like a guitar and could finger pick, flat pick, and strum chords fast enough to play the melody. Typical of his time, Jackson often played "hokum", raunchy music with lyrics often having both an innocent and an indecent meaning—"Shake That Thing" and "Baby, Papa Needs His Lovin'" were a couple. He wrote and recorded "Salty Dog Blues" in 1924 for Paramount Records.

Or maybe back to "Candy Man" by the Reverend Gary Davis, who first heard that song about 1905, containing the line, "If you can't be my candy man, can't be my salty dog." Many think the line refers to a street woman bargaining with a prospective client.

What's a salty dog? Best guess is that, eight or ten decades ago, it was either a non-specific vulgar term, varying from singer to singer, or "boy friend" with an X-rated connotation. Now it's just a song you hear at jam sessions.
